Red foxes

- ▶ Most red foxes have red fur but other colour variations may occur, including brown, silver and black. Red foxes have black ears and paws and a white throat, tail tip and underparts. Their long, bushy tail makes up to one-third of their total length.

- ▶ Red foxes are one of Canada's most widespread species. This can be attributed to their ability to adapt to a diverse range of habitat types, including forests, prairies, farms and cities.

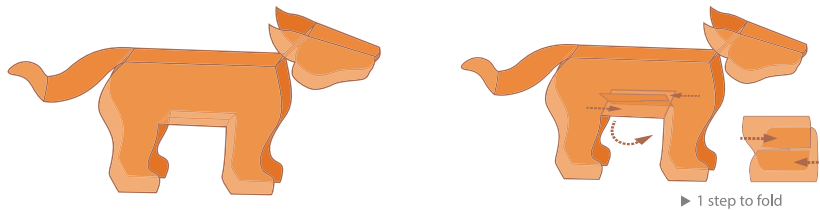

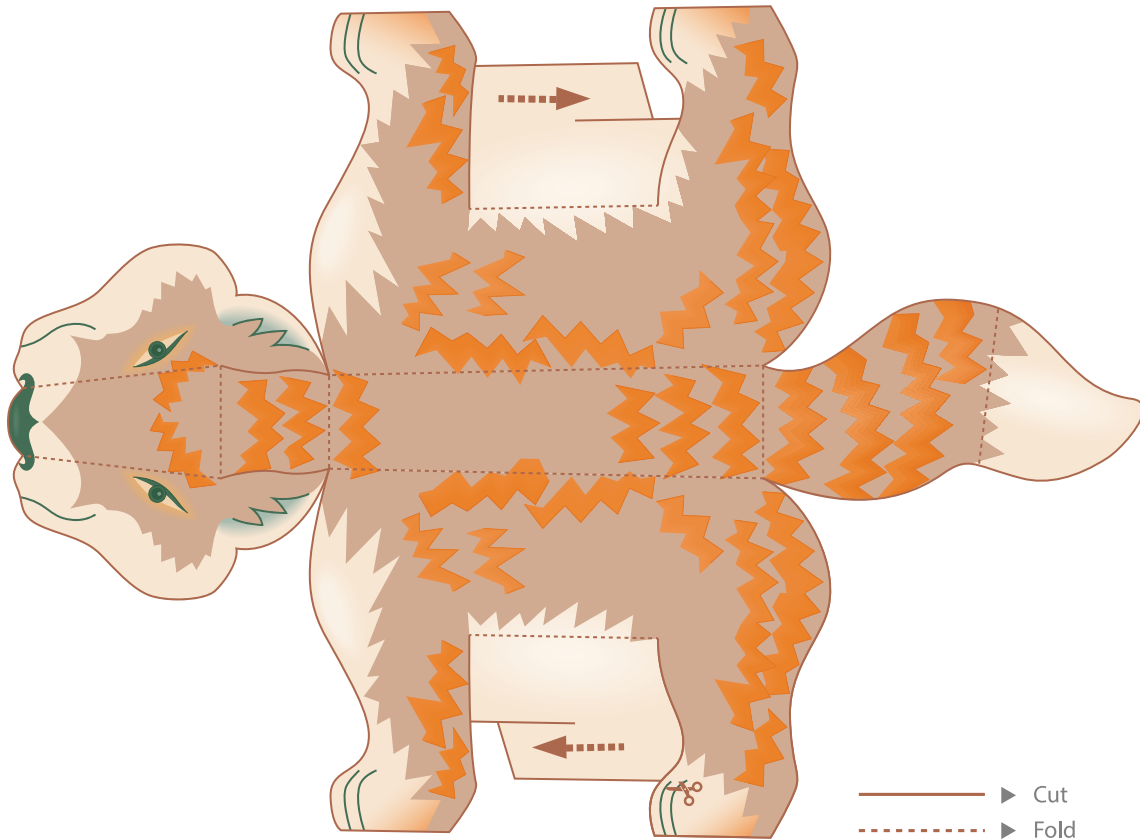

- ▶ Red foxes are great hunters, thanks to their keen eyesight, hearing and sense of smell. Mainly nocturnal, much of this species' hunting is done at night.
